A unique interaction between past and present

Grand canals, historic squares, elegant town houses or newly built homes reminiscent of the 1930s: each require lighting columns that suit the look and feel of the era. Cast iron or steel models might come to mind. Beautiful in their design and execution. However, you prefer a lightweight option, easy to install, with an environmentally friendly production process and guaranteed durability. Nedal has the solution. The Nedal RetroLine offers the alternative you are looking for, with four aluminium lighting columns in nostalgic retro designs to choose from.

Robust and lightweight, with superior detailing

The Nedal RetroLine lighting columns bring the past to life, but with state of the art materials and applications fitting with modern times. An ideal source of inspiration for city planners, architects and project developers looking to incorporate retro-look design lighting options, but who also understand the advantages of recycled aluminium. Not just from an ecological perspective, but also in terms of cost efficiency and maintenance. Because Nedal RetroLine aluminium lighting columns require lower maintenance and are durable and sustainable in every sense.
